REPUBLICAN SPECIAL.

Boston, Mass., Sept. 22.—Judging from the slim attendance at the Huntington Avenue Baseball Park this afternoon, where there was a double-header billed, many of the fans who were loyal to the Browns in the old days have lost heart and now are passing them up. It was a rather small crowd that saw the Browns break even with the Chicago Cubs, the former taking the first game, shutting the visitors out 2 to 0. Jack Powell worked against George W. Jones, the former being picked by the Cubs to hit the home run which would have won the game for them. Winter pitched well, but was no puzzle.

In the second game the Browns managed to square matters, pulling out their win in the ninth inning. Harry Howell was on the rubber, and did some good pitching when he was not delaying the game by arguing with Arthur Sheridan. Sheridan was out of the game for ten minutes, Van Zant and Wallace facing out several pretty ones. The Boston pitcher, however, was not so good in the second game. He was out of the game for ten minutes, Van Zant and Wallace facing out several pretty ones. The Boston pitcher, however, was not so good in the second game.
